Exciting Game of Poker on the Mississippi.

The following story is told by an old-pioneer: "Poker is a remarkable game. There isn't no limit to the regular game, you know, although you can make one of course. But I mean the regular old game they used to play on the Mississippi, in the good old times, when those southern fellows would, on a five-cent ante, raise in a black negro, or a steamboat, or a plantation. Anything, everything went. That reminds me of a little game I saw played. It was a powerful long time ago. I was a cabin boy then at seven dollars a month, and good wages that was considered. We were going from St. Louis down to New Orleans and had a fair crowd of passengers. Well, after we got well down the river—about Natchez, I think—there came aboard four fellows who evidently were looking for a little game. As it afterwards leaked out, they had a pot between them all of about $10,000, and had agreed if they got a soft thing—somebody who couldn't size the pile—to raise him out. You understand. Well, on the boat there was one of those collectors for a St. Louis house, who about twice a year used to make the round trip, and take home the money he would collect from people all along the river, and those collectors used to collect powerful lots of money in those days. When he came aboard at one of the stopping places, he gave the clerk a small package to put in the safe. The four fellows spotted him out and it wasn't long before the five were seated near the Captain's office playing a little five-cent ante game—just to pass the time they said. This collector was rather a small sized, thin, wiry looking chap, and a pair of mild blue eyes that would have looked well on a handsome woman. The four were about the average of the black-legs who used to travel up and down the river. Well, the game went on quietly enough. They had their drinks, and I would occasionally get a twenty-five cent piece when a good pot was raked in. They let the collector win until he had a pile of shimplasters ahead—guess some six or seven hundred dollars. He wasn't a bit excited, but played what you would call an average game. One of them dealt and the collector had three aces. They raised it all around, mild like until after the draw. The collector drew two cards—one was an ace, another a king—one of those invincible fellows. Then the four began to raise, one after another. The collector stood them all, and finally went down into his inside pocket and drew out his wallet. He must have had five thousand dollars in big bills. He quietly went three thousand better. That was what the four were waiting for. They were sure they had seized his pile. The leader saw his three thousand, laid his six-shooter down on the table, and planking down ten thousand said: 'I go you ten thousand better, and give you just five minutes to raise the money.' The game by this time had attracted general attention. The Captain of the boat was looking on—so were nearly all the passengers. The collector was just a trifle pale, but his blue eyes looked a little singular. I stood at his elbow, eyes and ears all open. Finally he said, quiet-like: 'See here, stranger, you'd better draw that last bet. I don't like to put so much money on a single hand.' 'Five minutes,' said the leader of the four. Again the little chap asked him to draw that last bet and give him a sight for the money up. But 'Five minutes and two already gone,' said the man who expected to out raise his victim. The little collector turned to me and said, 'Boy, step over to the clerk and tell him to let me have that package out of the safe.' Then he drew his six-shooter, and fully cocked laid it before him. Then you could see he meant business by the glitter of his blue eye. The leader of the party was already raking in the pot, but when the little chap laid down that six-shooter he stopped. I hurried over to the clerk who gave me the package. It was done up in a newspaper tied up with a twine. The blue-eyed man untied it, quiet-like, took the package of bills in one hand, the pistol in the other, and said without the least excitement: 'I see your ten thousand dollars, go you ninety thousand better, and give you just fifteen minutes to raise the money.' Well, you ought to have seen those fellows. They couldn't stand the raise; they didn't dare to raise a row for the sympathy was with the plucky little man. They got off at the landing the sickest lot of rascals you ever saw. That's the way they used to play poker, on the Mississippi when I was a cabin boy."

In the Chronicle of December 24th appears a letter over the name of John Leathers, which utterly denies the reported attack upon the U. S. Marshal, and calls somebody Government thieves. It is evident from the tone of this communication that the officers in question have been misrepresented. We have talked with them and they have no thought that their assailants were the honest fishermen spoken of by Mr. Leathers. They gave a grateful account of their treatment at the hands of the fishermen, whom they notified, but still aver that the attack was made substantially as stated. Now a man must be very frail when he imagines a volley of musket balls flying about his head, or he must be a great liar if he manufactures such stories. We do not believe that Marshal Ash or agent Barnes are prone to do that sort of thing. They have, in their treatment of the subject, been uniformly charitable and laudatory of the fishermen, and assigned them no active part in the attack. If now Mr. Leathers had the strong side of right, it would seem proper for him to be correspondingly charitable in refuting the story. We do not pretend to know the circumstances of the case except at second hand, but we do know this: that the story as originally told has been substantiated by both the Marshal and agent, and the occurrence telegraphed to Washington. If Mr. Leathers knows thieves around him, his place, as a good citizen, is to prove it as a matter of justice and not for revenge; his letter to the Chronicle, therefore, does not affect the case.

The Eastern War.

There is not by any means a cheerful outlook before the Turk. Erzeroum is besieged on all sides. The Russian General Kiudner has reached the locality of Sofia, and the heights of Kamari are the only positions held by the Turks for the defense of Sofia. The Sultan and his immediate followers are willing to sue for peace, but the Pashas are determined upon war in order to defer the punishment which will surely overtake them in case the Czar shall dictate the terms. The Sultan knows that his recent levy of 300,000 men will amount to nothing and his Egyptian auxiliaries are not efficient in any sense, hence he has determined to learn the probable terms of peace before permitting any more fighting. The Pashas point to England's action in calling Parliament together, and assert that she will interfere when Turkey is driven to the wall. A house divided against itself cannot stand, and these matters are a sure indication of Turkey's speedy humiliation and surrender. The Czar has evidently determined that the humiliation shall go far enough to secure his own terms.

The Grand Jury which just concluded its labors in Storey county found most of the county books kept in a very careless manner. They recommend many changes, and the report is exhaustive in all particulars. Some officers have received more than their dues, and others more than they deserve, considering the manner in which the accounts are kept.

The Silver State hears a hint that the numerous friends of Hon. J. J. Linn, now Deputy Warden at the State Prison, will present the name of that veteran for the Governorship of Nevada next year, and adds that in default of a better Democrat it will support Linn. Tally again, let's have them all out.

NEEDS HANGING.—The Virginia Chronicle is informed that while the west bound passenger train was standing at the Reno depot last Sunday night, some scoundrel cut the hose of the air brakes. The mischief was discovered as the train left the yard, when the damage was repaired at once. When the lightning train to Virginia was got ready to leave the next morning the same kind of mischief was found to have been done to its air brakes. The perpetrator has not yet been discovered. The railroad companies are considering the advisability of offering a reward for his arrest.

Georgians ridicule the statement that the new party movement is a result of Hayes' policy.

Anecdotes of a Dead French Dramatist.

Barriere, the French dramatist, who died a few weeks ago, once met a pretty actress whose protector had deserted her, and, opening the door of the coupe, did all in his power to console the unhappy woman, who was sobbing in the corner of the seat. But she would not be comforted. "No, no," she cried, "I can never smile again. I must drown myself." Very well," said Barriere, calmly shutting the door, "We shall meet at the morgue. Coachman, drive this lady to the river."

And yet Barriere meditated suicide himself once upon a time, had a pistol loaded, and called a friend to receive his dying wishes. The friend did not attempt to dissuade him, but calmly jotted down the dying wishes. Then, while Barriere was writing a farewell letter, took up the pistol and began examining it. It was cocked and the muzzle was pointed directly at Barriere. The intended suicide ducked under the table with remarkable agility, crying, "Look out! the d—d thing is loaded! You will be shooting me the first thing you know."

Barriere was once ambushed at a restaurant by a couple of young actresses who wanted two seats for the first night of one of his new pieces, where seats were valuable. A friend, who was at the table with him, knowing his weakness in such matters, stepped on his toe as a warning. "Not necessary," said Barriere, "I had already stepped on it myself."

A poor woman called on him one day, told her tale of suffering, enlisted his sympathies and got ten francs from him. After she had gone he saw something sparkling on the table where she had sat. He examined it. "A tear!" he said, "a real tear! I should have given her twenty."

Anti-Chinese.

The farmers of Big meadows have resolved against the Chinese as follows and the Silver State publishes. WHEREAS, It is our opinion that the time has arrived when it has become the duty of every American citizen to discountenance the presence of the Chinese amongst us, and to give his aid and sympathy to the party who favors his expulsion from the country, and who will labor to procure protection for the laboring and producing classes; therefore Resolved, That we the business men of Big Meadows give our aid and sympathy to the labor and anti-Chinese party of the Pacific coast.

Resolved, That we with a view to benefit the interests of the country at large, and this community in particular, and to aid in the permanent removal of the Chinese from our coast, shall not employ any of them to do any work at any price.

Resolved, That we so far forget old party ties and prejudices, as to unite and stand firmly together upon all matters affecting the interests of the white laborer and the general prosperity of the nation.

Resolved, That our patronage shall be withheld in every way, and at all times, from dealers, merchants and others who may continue to employ Chinamen, or to keep them around, or to countenance them in any way.

BULLION SHIPMENTS.—The Grand Prize shipped west Saturday seven bars of bars of bullion valued at $11,653.

Yesterday four bars were shipped from Cherry Creek, three from the Star mine valued at $2,700, and one from the Geneva valued at $2,800.

A lot of bullion valued at $5,085 from Atlanta, Idaho, was brought here yesterday by express and shipped to Buffalo, New York, to-day.—Silver State, 26th.

CHRISTMAS IN THE STATE PRISON.—A gentleman from Carson informs us that even the convicts in the State Prison shared to some extent in the Christmas rejoicings. It seems that on the day before Christmas Warden Batterman received from Colonel Fair a consignment of Christmas gifts for the prisoners, including half a dozen barrels of crushed sugar, several barrels of apples, four boxes of tobacco and a box of pipes.—Virginia Chronicle.

The bonanza miners were not granted a holiday on Christmas.

SULPHUR MINE LEASED.—The Pacific Sulphur Company's mine and works at Rabbit Hole have been leased for five years by John Skinner, 115 Pine street, San Francisco, with the privilege of buying the property at a given price whenever he feels disposed to do so. New and more extensive works are to be erected immediately. C. S. Osborn will continue to superintend the works, as heretofore.

WINTERMANTEL'S.—The attention of the reader is called to the comfortable hotel and restaurant of Louis Wintermantel, on Center Street, near the Depot. The best of accommodations are offered to travellers. Also the El Dorado Saloon, opposite the hotel, where the pleasure seeker will find shooting galleries, ten pin alleys, billiard table and bagatelle. The El Dorado has been arranged for the comfort of guests, and the best of wines, liquors and cigars are kept constantly on hand. If you are looking for a quiet and comfortable place in which to pass an hour, go to the El Dorado, and good attention is guaranteed.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Notes by the Way.

Surprise Valley—Items of Modoc and Reop Counties, etc.

Continued.

A ride of sixteen miles north and we find ourselves at Camp Bidwell—the home of some 200 inhabitants, and the headquarters of an important military post. We are now 200 miles north of Reno, 10 miles from the Oregon line and 15 miles from Nevada. Bidwell lies at the head of the Valley. Here we find a large store kept by Irwin Ayres, a hotel kept by a typo named Cole, a photograph gallery, brewery, two saloons, etc. Here we met Seymour, editor of the lately deceased Bidwell Herald, a genial young man and former student of Harvard. From his Bohemian experiences were called to mind those lines from Tennyson: "And dare we to this fancy give, that had the wild oat not been sown, the soil, left barren, scarce had grown the grain by which a man may live." At the military camp we met another newspaper man, Lieutenant Fred A. Smith, a graduate of West Point, and a perfect gentleman. By his kindness our little party were "shown around." The garrison consists of two companies—56 cavalrymen and 35 infantry. The Commandant of the Camp, Capt. Henry Wagoner and Lieutenant Norton are the commissioned officers of the cavalry. Captain Norvell and Lieutenant Smith are the officers of the infantry. Major W. Mathews is the surgeon and physician. Two large double set buildings furnish complete accommodations for the officers. These quarters are cozily provided with every needed comfort, and are so situated as to command a fine view of the valley and adjacent mountains. The barracks are also furnished with the requisite conveniences and provisions for soldier quarters. Every apartment was in perfect order—everything neat. The soldiers, though not all bearing the impress of intelligence, yet were neat in person and orderly in their every act. The hospital, guard house, store rooms, bakery, wash house, etc., are in keeping with all that we have described. Much of what we saw and which reflects credit to the Government and the officers in command, bears the impress of the intelligent superintendence of Lieutenant Smith. Two twelve-pound howitzers are the only mounted cannon at the Camp. The rifles used are Spencer's improved breech loaders. The Government stables are systematically arranged and well stocked. On the pasture lands we saw about 100 horses and 60 mules. Part of this stock, however, belongs to the Wheeler surveying expedition. The land belonging to the Government covers an area of one mile in width and two and a half miles in length. The health of the Camp is excellent, their not being a sick soldier in the hospital.

At the town we learned that the Odd Fellow and Masonic orders, as at Lake City and Cedarville, are well represented; but what was a great surprise to us was the fact that the secret society which commands the greatest strength is the Good Templars, there being over 400 tetratolers in the Valley. We are at a loss to account for this. We heard nothing of the Murphy card nor Rev. Mr. Allen, nor did we see any blue ribbons. The best reason, however, may be found in the statement of another: "This whisky is powerful weak."

We found that the people of the Valley are very desirous of having a new mail route from Reno to Camp Bidwell, and thence north into Oregon. At present the mail goes by Susanville, over a rough road, and one which is nearly seventy miles longer than the direct route between this point and Bidwell. Often during the Winter and Spring they do not get their mail for five or six weeks, owing to heavy snows on the road between Susanville and Coppersmith's. The people appreciate the efforts of the Gazette to secure the lately ordered mail route through by Fish Springs, a route open during the entire year. We found a number of persons who very properly thought that the summit of the Sierra's should be the dividing line between this State and California. If such were the case Surprise Valley would lie entirely in our State. Not only does the natural boundary place Surprise Valley with us, but all the trade in stock and farm produce must come to Reno to find a market. West of the Valley lie high rugged mountains extending miles away, and placing a distant California market beyond access. Were a petition to the State Legislature circulated in the valley, asking that Surprise be surveyed to lie in Nevada, we believe that it would be signed by every man in the valley. California already has much land which properly belongs in this State. The natural boundary between the two states should be the summit of the Sierra's.

Tomorrow we shall speak of several large outlying valleys etc.

CREAL FURNACE.—The Creal furnace is now attracting considerable attention from a number of our prominent citizens. Being a little cold, and learning that a furnace fired seven times hotter than the one owned and run by old Nebuchadnezzar, in the palmy days of yore, was in town, we visited George Alt's warming pan, and found a host of mining men there toasting their shins, whittling chips, and discussing on the merits of Kinkaid's late patent on candles. All the fire places were hot, and the fireman piling in wood. Creal wore a smile and actually believes that he will melt the ore stuffing out of a quantity of Pyramid rock. It was the intention to try some ore this afternoon, but we have just been informed that the test day will be tomorrow. Our hopes are strong for a complete success.

NEW YEAR PARTIES.—The Riverside party on New Year's Eve promises to be a grand affair. Invitations are out and a special train from Carson will be run for the accommodation of guests from the capital.

The grand ball of the locomotive firemen, at Gladding's Hall, Washworth, December 31st, will also be something immense. Professor Scott will furnish the music and a large attendance is expected.

At Milford John Fitch is to have a grand blow out on New Year's Night, and the preparations are on a par with that gentleman's usual hospitality. Nels. Hammond says he has been retained as bar-tender, and all of the boys will be there.

Scott plays for the Masonic party in Washoe this evening.

FIREMAN'S BALL.—Our account of the Fireman's ball yesterday was short, owing to the late hour at which it was written. We were present and congratulate Washoe No. 2 upon the excellent management displayed, the sociability and good order which prevailed, and the general satisfaction which was evident. The proceeds will exceed $200, and the fair ladies had the most sociable, and cheerful party of the season. The proceeds will be used in the purchase of a lot, building an engine house and adding to the efficiency of the company.

PERSONAL.—W. H. Virden, of the Gold Hill News, was in town this morning.

Sam Davis, of the Virginia Chronicle, passed west Monday night to spend the holidays with the old folks at home, in California.

E. J. Parkinson, of the Carson Tribune, tarried a day in our midst. We saw him not, but the fair sex acknowledge his visit and bade him welcome.

CORRECTION.—A report was current on the street yesterday that the Creal furnace had been tested in a small way. The same was untrue. The furnace is still drying and no ore will be passed through it until the process is completed.

The civil case of Perry vs. Avery this afternoon claimed the attention of Justice Richardson and a jury of able-bodied men. Action was brought by the plaintiff to recover possession of a watch under attachment.

LIBRARY.—We inform those who are anxious about the Reno Library that it is in good quarters at Doctor Hogan's office on Second street, where any member can go and enjoy its privileges.

AND AGAIN.—Thomas Wren, our representative in Congress, will accept our thanks for a copy of the Finance Report for 1875. If our two Legislators keep up the good work we shall have quite a library by 1879.

Organize your New Years calling parties and send us in your ticket orders.

Go and hear Prof. Gunning to-night at the Congregational Church at 7:30.

History of Life.

Professor Gunning gave his second lecture last evening to a fair house at the Methodist Church. After a few prefatory remarks he rapidly traced animal life from the Lawrentian rocks of Canada to the limestone formation now going on in Florida. It was held by geologists ten years ago that during what they term the Azic period there was no form of life. More recent investigation proves, however, that in the earliest rocks appear the fossilized remains of a very low type of animal life called "The Life Dawn." The speaker clearly described this peculiar non-membered animal and calculated from the probable time of the formation of these rocks primeval that it had existed 400,000,000 years. In the early Silurian rocks we find a higher but yet unbrained animal life. In this red sandstone this life existed for 40,000,000 years. Later in the Devonian we find still higher and more varied life. Fish are abundant and reptiles make their appearance, but in the Carboniferous period animals of prodigious size and vast in numbers fill the waters, cover the land and cloud the air. Vegetable and animal life exist in profusion. He gave a description of some of those huge lizards, reptilian birds and fish a la Batracian. It was then that along the large inland seas and rivers, that beside each other walked the solemn plesiosaurus, and on less romantic life fed the festive Ichthyosaurus, while above flew and circled the cheerful Pterodactyl. We have not the space to follow the lecturer through the various succeeding ages, nor can we by a meagre outline of his lecture, give that report of it which would prove of interest to the reader. Step by step, he passed in review these grand outlines of evolution, showing the changes in climate; illustrating the erosive action of atmospheric agency; sailed down wide shallow rivers, and led his rapt listeners into the solemn but imposing stillness of antiquated caves and vividly pictured to us primeval man and his associate troglodytes. On our globe and in the Oceanic islands we find rude life. All over old earth we find traces of age and youth in animal and plant life, but man, while himself bearing the impress of age in his language, customs and dress, stands, by his mental prowess, the peer of all else save the Author of all. Matchless he stands, immortal he lives. The elements are at his command. The deep sea is open for his inspection. The lightning bears his message and the spheres chant music to his soul.

Messrs. Hammond & Wilson have just received from Boston a very fine sleigh. Now let the clerk bring on his snow and ice.

The weather is glorious but the times are dull and the holidays drag. Oh, for a rise in stocks or a copious shower of ten-cent pieces.

Matt Parrott, the gunsmith, has just received a number of fine guns and pistols of the latest patterns.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A sad accident occurred at Alhambra Hill, White Pine county, on the 12th instant. A Mr. J. C. Williams, while working a mine in that locality, had, with his family, been occupying an old cabin, and on the morning of the 12th, while Mrs. Williams was preparing breakfast, the dirt roof of the cabin fell with a crash, completely burying the inmates. Mr. Williams soon extricated himself and wife and youngest child, but upon recovering from the shock remembered that his oldest child, a boy two years and a half of age, was still in the ruins. The boy was rescued in a few moments, but it was too late; the little fellow had been smothered, and when found his mouth was filled with dirt, on the removal of which he gasped a few times and died. Mrs. Williams was cut about the head, Mr. W. also received a few slight injuries, while the youngest child escaped unhurt.

The turkey and chicken shooting still continues.

Another Egyptian Date Established.

At a meeting of the French Academy of inscriptions, held some time since, M. de Sauley read a paper in regard to a discovery by the scholar Chabas, which, for the first time, introduced a positive date into the old Egyptian history. Hitherto, the distinguished Egyptologist, M. de Rouge, has only succeeded in establishing three dates with absolute certainty—the years 1800, 1240 and 962 B. C., the last of these being that of the taking of Jerusalem by Sheshonk I, the Shisak of the Bible. But two or three months ago M. Chabas was fortunate enough to succeed in reading a doubtful cartouche (royal name enclosed in an oval figure) in the famous Ebers papyrus, a fac simile of which was published last year. It proved to be the name of the Pharaoh Menkheres, the Mycerinus of the Greek historians and the builder of the third or smallest pyramid at Gizeh. Attached to the cartouche was an astronomical note, stating that the heliac rising on the star Sothis occurred in the ninth year of the reign of Menkheres. The ancient Egyptians had the habit of signaling important political events by some contemporaneous astronomical phenomenon. Many of the latter could scarcely be identified or determined now; but since we know that their Sothis is our star Sirius, we are easily able to fix the rare periods of its heliac rising. This is the astronomical term used when a star, after being in conjunction with the sun and invisible, emerges from the light sufficiently to be seen just before sun rise. M. Chabas immediately took his discovery to the astronomer Biot, who made the necessary calculations, whence it appears that the heliac rising of Sothis, in the ninth year of the reign of Menkheres, must have taken place between the years 3007 and 3010 B. C. M. de Sauley stated that he had made the calculation independently, and with precisely the same result; he was entirely convinced of the correctness of the date. As the first assured step toward establishing, if only in its general outlines, the chronology of the ancient Egyptian empire, the discovery is of incalculable importance. It fixes the age of the third pyramid of Gizeh at about 4880 years, and antedates by fully 1770 years, the earliest accurately ascertained point in ancient chronology.
